

The Top 5 Places to Stay During Your Renovation

July 27, 2018

Maybe you're tough as nails and will have no problem staying at home during your home renovation. Living in the basement for a five months is nothing. Ordering take-out every night is fun. Dust, noise, and various tradespeople coming in and out all day is nothing but a minor grievance when you think of all the greatness that is to come.

Or maybe it would just be easier to vacate for a while. Get away from the hectic house and come back when the renovations are done. Trust us: we have seen the valiant effort by those who want to stay in their house while it is being renovated. They are just as likely as us to tell you to get out of that chaos. Luckily, we have some ideas for places you can go.

1 | Ultimate Homes

When you renovate with us, make sure to ask us about the houses we have for you to stay in while we occupy your home. This isn't something that most contractors and renovation companies will be able to offer, but we want this to be a great experience, rather than a stressful time. So we make sure our customers are well-taken care of when their home is filled with dust, noise and tradespeople.

2 | Travel

What a great time for a vacation! You want to vacate the house. The family wants to go on an adventure. Plan your vacation to coincide with the renovations. It'll not only get you away from your hectic house, but will also let you recover from all the effort of planning a renovation to begin with. Leave your home in good hands and go somewhere fun.

3 | Camping

Chances are, somewhere in your hometown, there is a campground. If you have a trailer, or can rent or borrow one, hit up the local campground. It will feel like a mini-holiday, but your day-to-day life will barely change. You can keep access to a kitchen and bathroom, but you won't need to stay with a friend or family member (unless you want to).

4 | Friends and Family

You would do anything for your friends and family, and surely they feel the same way about you. Chances are there is a guest room you can stay in for the time being. It'll give you a chance to reconnect, and as thanks, you can make them an amazing dinner in your new kitchen when you get back to your home.

5 | Short-Term Rent

For long-term renovations, many people opt to rent a fully furnished place while they are out of the house. Some homeowners will let you rent on a month-to-month basis without a year-long contract. Another similar option would be to rent a hotel room for the time. You would have to compare estimated time frame, and cost per night, but both these options can give you a secure option with a homey-feeling.
